OKLAHOMA CITY – Cellular service provider Cricket Wireless has signed a year-long, 1251 square foot lease at First National Center. With three employees in the downtown location, Cricket moved into its First National space on April 8, the day the company expanded services into Oklahoma City.

“Our no-contract approach to wireless is innovative, and we wanted to roll out our services in a location that fits with our company and product,” said Hank Wahl, Cricket Wireless Manager. “First National is undergoing an exciting renovation, and the location they offered us, right next to the Robinson entrance, is perfect for new customer traffic.”

“We are excited to be attracting more tenants with a national presence,” said Emily D. Dobson, property manager at First National Center. “First National Center is proving that it is a great location for both multi-state and local companies to thrive.”
